

Our School Commitment

At Cayton School, we uphold and promote British values. Our School Councillors are voted for by the children in fair and democratic elections. We believe that there should be a sense of fair play and a respect for the rule of law. This can be found in the exemplary behaviour of our pupils and which is commented upon by visitors to the school and by those we visit.

Cayton School community has the right to respect and be respected. This permeates the ethos of our school, whether it is respecting faith, culture, ethnic background or disability.

The freedom of our children is honoured at all times within a safe and supportive community.
